How Humana protects your information

Humana is committed to protecting your personal health and financial information. We protect the confidentiality of, prohibit the unlawful disclosure of and limit access to Social Security numbers. Humana has physical, technical and administrative safeguards in place to secure your information. These safeguards follow federal and state laws. Examples of how we keep your personal information safe include offices and work areas that are kept secure, computers that require passwords, and locked storage areas and filing cabinets. We require our employees to protect your personal information through written policies and procedures. The policies limit access to your personal information to only those employees who need the information to complete a specific task and as allowed by law. Humana disposes of protected information in a manner that precludes identification of the individual and the subject matter.

Our goal is to protect your information as if it were our own.
